

THE FLOAT TANK

The float tank is a large bath of near body temperature 35.5 C, warm water containing a highly concentrated and dense salt solution (epsom salt - magnesium sulphate) to increase buoyancy, this allows you to float effortlessly.

The silence safety and warmth of the environment is naturally conducive to relaxation and peace of mind. Released to float in suspension without the body experiencing the effects of gravity and outside distractions, your entire being achieves levels of rest much deeper than you have ever previously experienced.

One hour of floating is equivalent to 6 hours sleep.

The accelerated removal of lactic acid, pain and stiffness means a faster recovery and therefore allowing more frequent training. You can even train in the tank. Studies have shown that rehearsing an event in the mind while the body is relaxing can improve your performance just as much as actual practice. A float will banish nervousness and focus your mind prior to that big sporting event, speech or performance.
